The Prophet Joseph's Ring

The original ring dates from the Nauvoo period and is believed to be the ring the Prophet used in the April 1844 "King Follett" sermon to illustrate the eternal nature of man.

Sometime after the Prophet's martyrdom in 1844, Emma Smith gave the ring to Alexander Hale Smith, one of their sons. The ring appears on Joseph's hand in several paintings done in his lifetime. Today the ring is privately owned.

Joseph Smith's signature on the inside of the ring is an added designer's element. This reproduction is a high quality replica of the original.

The ring is offered in both men's and women's versions. Together they make an attractive wedding set.

Each ring is packaged in a beautifully finished cherry-wood box that can be used for display.
